

Asian Public Governance Forum on Regional Development for Inclusive Growth

22-23 March 2017
Millennium Seoul Hilton Hotel
Seoul, Republic of Korea

Welcome Note

Regions are the basic and fundamental units for our daily lives. All our day-to-day activities – where we live, where we work and where we engage with communities – take place there. People perceive the presence of government and their actions when the public services are provided by the municipalities. Thus it is an initial but essential stage where all levels of government should be responsive to the needs and demands of the people. Regional development policies can effectively respond to people’s desire for a better life, and municipal policies should be aligned with national policies as well as that of the neighboring regions for a balanced development.

Most of the Asian countries drive economic growth as the first priority of the national development, while regional development might be held up by central policies and national agenda. Korea has achieved dramatic and rapid economic development through centralized control strategies, but its unbalanced growth in regions is slowing the country to move forward. Recognizing this challenge, the role of governments in building productive economies while ensuring inclusive societies is ever more crucial. Learning from the past experiences and the current challenges of neighboring countries will help us find lessons and insights to overcome them.

The forum is structured under four inter-related sessions, in which the topics will be introduced by the invited speakers and respondents. The main discussion is intended to reflect the ongoing concerns of the participating countries in respect of the over-arching theme of “regional development for inclusive growth.” The moderator for each session may call on individual participants to reflect on the issues under review and how they are being addressed in and by their own countries and governments. Participants are warmly invited to join the open discussion and provide comments to deepen the topic at a greater length.

On behalf of the organisers, I would like to welcome you to the APG Forum on Regional Development and to a fruitful couple of days filled with interactions, exploration and new friendships.

Kim, Junny
Director-General, Public Governance Programme

Wednesday, 22 March 2017

08:30 – 09:00 Registration / Tea and Coffee

09:00 – 09:30 Opening Session

Opening Remarks by KIM, Junny, Director General of the Public Governance Programme, OECD KOREA Policy Centre

Congratulatory Remarks by Rolf ALTER, Director of the Public Governance and Territorial Development Directorate, OECD (video message)

Keynote Address on Productive Regions for Inclusive Societies by Joaquim OLIVEIRA MARTINS, Head of the Regional Development Policy Division, OECD

09:30 – 11:00 Session 1: The Importance of Regional Development

Countries are witnessing increasing inequalities in income and living standards among regions, cities and people within their own borders. The average productivity gap across regions has widened over the past two decades as the leading regions outpace other regions. This session focuses on challenges of widening gaps in regions and how countries respond to them. In particular, discussions will be centered on how governments respond to the implications of these trends in country-specific context for the well-being of people living in different places and to achieve inclusive growth.

Moderator: KIM, Soon Hee, Professor, KDI School of Public Policy and Management, Korea

Presenter:

- Mick DUNFORD, Professor, Chinese Academy of Sciences and University of Sussex, United Kingdom
- SO, Jin Kwang, President, Korea Saemaul Undong Center, Chairman, Saemaul Undong Global League

Discussants

- Paul CONWAY, Director, Economics and Research, New Zealand Productivity Commission
- Eva Benita A. TUZON, Director, Pilot Projects Division, Centre on Integrated Rural Development for Asia and the Pacific (CIRDAP)

Open Discussions

Ideas for discussion include:

- How does regional development contribute to economic productivity?
- What are the main national economic and social challenges for regional development?
- How can regional development help to achieve inclusive society?

11:00 – 11:15 Coffee Break

11:15 – 12:45 Session 2: Good Governance Practices for Regional Development

Good governance is associated with higher levels of productivity and catching-up dynamics. Less fragmentation of local governments is associated with better performance in terms of productivity and inclusion. This session focuses on how structural policies, public investment and multi-level governance reforms can help boost productivity and address inclusion. More specifically, discussions will highlight practices and regional development policies that guide place-based public investment, as well as some of the governance tools and reforms at the regional level that make the regions more competitive.

Moderator: Enrique GARCILAZO, Head of Rural Policy Unit, Regional Development Policy Division, OECD

Presenter:

- Chris MCDONALD, Policy Analyst, Regional Development Policy Division, OECD
- Gambhir BHATTA, Technical Advisor and Chief, Governance Thematic Group, Asian Development Bank

Discussants

- Blake SHEPHERD, Principal Policy Advisor, Ministry of Business Innovation and Employment, New Zealand
- Joko Tri HARYANTO, Senior Researcher, Fiscal Policy Agency, Ministry of Finance, Indonesia

Open Discussions

Ideas for discussion include:

- What are the roles of central and local government policies in regional development, and how can effective multi-level coordination be realized?
- How do governance tools and reforms contribute to the regional revitalization?
- What reforms can improve the performance of the governance system for regional development and make the most of the national and subnational public investment?

12:45 – 14:00    Group Photo & Lunch

14:00 – 15:30    Session 3: Rethinking Rural Development, Utilizing Innovative Approaches

---

Progress has been made to move rural development approaches beyond farm supports to also recognize the diversity of rural regions and the importance of connectivity to dynamic areas. Innovation in rural policy builds capacity at the local level to encourage participation and bottom-up development through a partnership-driven approach. This session focuses on enhancing communities' competitive advantages, and how local participation and bottom-up development are encouraged to invigorate rural areas.

Moderator: KIM, Soon Hee, Professor, KDI School of Public Policy and Management, Korea

Presenter:

- Enrique GARCILAZO, Head of Rural Policy Unit, Regional Development Policy Division, OECD

- Mohamad Razali ISMAIL, Deputy Director, Regional Development Section, Economic Planning Unit, Prime Minister's Department, Malaysia

Open Discussions

Ideas for discussion include:

- Which features should be highlighted for rural development?
- What policies can enhance rural-urban linkages?
- What are the key trends for rural development over the medium and long run and how should rural policies respond?

15:30 – 15:45 Coffee Break

15:45 – 17:15 Session 4: Urban Development Challenges and Urban Rural Linkages

Cities face challenges in meeting the growing needs for housing, transportation, and environmental protection resulting from concentration of population. The rural-urban linkages are important for integrated development particularly since almost 81.7% of OECD rural residents live in regions near cities. Greater recognition of the complementarities and connections among urban and rural spaces is needed, as well as the subnational capacity building. This session focuses on the cooperation across local actors, businesses, community groups and others for integrated development, and how sustainable urban development can be fostered.

Moderator: Chris MCDONALD, Policy Analyst, Regional Development Policy Division, OECD

Presenter:

- KIM, Jeong Ho, Professor, KDI School of Public Policy and Management, Korea

14:00 – 16:00 Study Visit: Incheon Free Economic Zone (IFEZ)

- Compact Smart City (Incheon Urban Planning Center)

As the third most populous city after Seoul and Busan with about 3 million inhabitants, Incheon has led the country's economic development and modernization as a center of industrialization since the opening of industrial ports to the world in 1883; taking advantage of its extraordinary geographical location at the center of Northeast Asia, a region that now accounts for 20 percent of the global economy. The zone is divided into three areas: Songdo, Yeongjong, and Cheongra with the total area size of 132.9 km<sup>2</sup> obtained through reclamation.

- IFEZ PR Center

The Incheon Free Economic Zone (IFEZ), the first free economic zone ever designated in Korea, invites large local companies and global enterprises particularly in the eight strategic industries (automobiles, robotics, biotechnology, cosmetics, tourism, aviation, marina and services) that will underpin the city's emergence as the new business hub of Northeast Asia. Located within a two-hour flight from 84 major cities with populations of more than 1 million, IFEZ has attracted some $1.2 billion in FDI since its inception in 2003, which accounts for 88 percent of total international investments in all eight free economic zones in Korea.

- IFEZ U-city Operations Center

Ifez U-City Operation Centre systematically and comprehensively manages the ifez's transportation, crime and disaster prevention, environment, and facilities management based on a ubiquitous system. The center takes advantage of IT technologies to receive public governance information from relevant institutions, thereby better responding to public governance matters and providing necessary information to citizens.

Organising Parties

OECD-KOREA Policy Centre Public Governance Programme

The OECD Korea Policy Centre has its mission in disseminating advanced public policy systems to the Asia-Pacific region in cooperation with the OECD. Established by a Memorandum of Understanding between the OECD and the government of the Republic of Korea, the Centre's Public Governance Programme seeks to be a bridge between the OECD and the Asia-Pacific region, sharing OECD member countries' public governance policy experiences with non-members. It regularly holds international meetings and capacity building programmes on governance topics including public innovation, local finance, public-private partnership and regulatory reform.

OECD Public Governance and Territorial Development Directorate

The mission of the OECD is to promote policies that will improve the economic and social well-being of people around the world. It provides a forum in which governments share experiences and seek solutions to common problems. It helps understand what drives economic, social and environmental change; provides measures and benchmarks to support evidence-based policy-making and sets international standards. The OECD GOV Directorate helps countries to implement strategic, evidence-based and innovative policies to strengthen public governance and improve citizens' trust in government. Specific focus areas include digital government; open government; budgeting and public expenditures; fighting corruption in the public sector; public employment and management; regional development; and regulatory policy.
